- Attaché at the Embassy of the Republic of Korea to Georgia
- George Mason University; BA in Global Affairs, Conflict Analysis and Resolution Minor

What are you up to now?

Currently, I'm an attaché at the Embassy of the Republic of Korea in the Republic of Georgia. Specifically, I coordinate Official Development Aid (ODA) projects and government aid designed to promote the economic development and welfare of developing countries. Being able to speak Korean, Russian, Georgian, and English has been a huge asset for me in my field.

What advice do you have for BFS students as they go off to university/college?

If I had one piece of advice to give, it would be: don't be afraid to make yourself intellectually uncomfortable. What I mean by that is to let your mind be open to different ideas—especially those that challenge your viewpoints. Be curious, be open-minded, and be uncomfortable. It will make you a better leader and a better person.
